

TSI Conference: Synthetic balance sheet securitisations and financing the transition

TSI Conference in cooperation with KfW

The transition into a green and sustainable future has started, and we see broad consensus: Huge investments will need to be financed to a large extent through the banking sector, in turn requiring well-functioning securitisation markets. But are we prepared? Do we have a market able to absorb large volumes? What needs to be improved from issuers' and investors' perspective? We will discuss all these questions with leading experts in the German and European markets and a particularly focus on synthetic balance sheet securitisations.
